ANNUAL REPORT
OF THE
BOARD OF EDUCATION
OF THE TOWN OF
NORTH HAMPTON, FOR
The Year ending March 14,
1891.

Annual Report.

TO THE CITIZENS OF NORTH HAMPTON ;

Again with the close of another school year it becomes our duty to report the condition of your schools.

It has been in our judgment a prosperous year ; no general sickness has prevailed among the children ; indeed it is quite a remarkable fact, and should awaken gratitude in our hearts, that no child of school age has died since the town system was established five years ago.

Looking back to the old district system we feel that marked progress has been made in our schools ; free text books as well as better ones, better equipment in all lines of supplies, and better classification have produced good results. We still see many defects and great room for improvement, but that the trend is upward and onward all who visit the schools admit. We find that nearly all criticism of teachers and of methods of instruction and rules adopted, is by those parents who seldom or never visit the schools.

For your own sake, parents, for if you once adopt the plan you will enjoy it, for the sake of your children ; for the sake of encouraging the teachers and for the good of our schools as a whole, visit them and then freely express to your school board wherein improvement can be made, and if you can justly do so, speak encouraging words to your teachers.

A gentleman, well able to judge, recently said after listening to the reading of a paper written by the scholars of one of our schools lately graded, "I am more than pleased, I am surprised and gratified at the progress made and to find that you, scholars, have been able to write such articles as the paper contains."

Few, who have not taught, themselves, realize the nervous strain upon teachers or the real work there is for them to do. It is not confined to the six hours in the school room; our successful teachers spend hours each day, outside of the class room, in preparation, in correcting written lessons and in planning the details of the next day's work. The great amount of oral instruction required, in these days of progress, necessitates much general reading on the part of teachers. The day is coming, not far distant, when beside free text books, the schools of our state will be furnished with libraries, perhaps not large ones, but containing books of value bearing upon every department of instruction given—books that shall greatly aid teacher and scholars.

Where and how do your boys and girls spend their evenings? Upon the answer depends quite largely their future career in life. If they acquire the habit of spending many of them at their homes in reading instructive books such as our school libraries ought to furnish, then they will be shielded from scores of dangers that assail those who go out into life with the habit of wasting their evenings.

We realize that the youngest children cannot be quite as regular in attendance in winter as the older ones, but we believe in all our schools the attendance could be better and that it is in the power of parents to make it so. Irregularity of attendance is one of the greatest hindrances to progress in school work with which we have to contend; it lays with you, parents, to say whether it shall be in a measure removed in the year to come. It is by no means confined to children living long distances from our school houses. We have tried to remedy it by requiring written excuses for absence; they have proved helpful, and would accomplish still more if all parents would cordially co-operate in enforcing the rule.

There have been less changes of teachers the past year, for which we are thankful. Miss Emma E. Thrasher of North Newport taught at the East through the year—the ungraded spring term and the grammar department, fall and winter terms. She is a lady of good qualities of mind and heart; conscientious in her work, adopting modern methods of instruction. Her room has always presented a very neat and orderly appearance; her scholars have made good progress. Her rules and decisions may at times have seemed a little severe to her pupils, but the result of the year's work is seen in the expanded minds of her scholars and in a more gentlemanly and ladylike deportment.

Miss Theresa J. North of Canning, N. S., came to the primary department when the school was graded; she has proved a valuable teacher; years of experience have enabled her to do good work with little ones.

One of the great improvements of the year has been the grading of the East school, and we think all who have visited the rooms, and seen the scholars at work, have felt that it was a wise decision on the part of the town to appropriate money to enlarge the school house. The building is a convenient one; the rooms, pleasant, light and airy, and its exterior such as to make it attractive to the passer. An organ is needed for its primary department, also a few new desks.

Mr. James E. Fisher of Mansfield, Mass., the efficient teacher in the grammar department at the Center, continued his work there through spring and fall terms, then, because of an impairment of his hearing, he was obliged to give up teaching. He has been a faithful worker; he won the respect of the committee and the hearts of his scholars.

Mr. Will D. Tillson of East Foxboro, Mass., who came to fill the vacancy caused by Mr. Fisher's resignation, has through the winter term proved himself a man whose influence has been elevating in school and out, and his work, as shown by the progress of his pupils, has met our approval. We desire to say that the large boys, many of whom cannot attend other than in the winter season, have been very studious during the term and their deportment commendable. There has been a mutual effort on the part of scholars and teacher to make the term successful. Several branches have been taught in this department during the year that had not previously been admitted—geometry, general history and Latin. They have been taught, to meet the needs of some of the advanced scholars, whose parents did not wish at present to send them to higher schools out of town. We feel the need of a high school in town, and trust its citizens will in due time provide for one.

The Center primary department has been under the care of Miss Eva L. Brown of Exeter, one term, and Miss Alice V. Currier of Middleton, Mass., two terms. Miss Brown had received a good training for the school room at the normal department of Robinson Seminary, and had taught some: she brought good methods, and the term was a fairly successful one. Skilled in drawing, she was able to give excellent instruction in that line, making much use of the blackboard as well as the drawing book.

Miss Currier has proved herself a lady of rare attractiveness of manner and disposition. Quiet and unassuming in personal appearance, she is at ease in the school room and has good command of her position. She has constantly improved as a teacher, and we hope to secure her services for the year to come. The pupils have been well instructed, as their progress shows. Miss C. is a singer, and has been able to give more attention to music than some former teachers. The room was crowded during the fall term; forty-four little ones make a family hard to care for.

We wish more attention might be given to music in all our schools; we hope the coming year to provide music, charts and books for that purpose; it will be some expense, but if our children can obtain in our schools the rudiments of a good musical education, it will be of inestimable value to them. Increased attention is given to this department of instruction in all the large villages and cities; in many places a regular music teacher is employed, who devotes all his time to visiting the schools and instructing the pupils.

Citizens, let us by suitable appropriations, as far as possible, place our schools on an equal footing with those of the larger towns and cities.

We would recommend a small appropriation for repairs and new furniture, as it always is necessary to spend some money for these purposes and it does not seem wise to use the regular school money—indeed, the law allows only five per cent to be used.

Francis Bacon said : "A wise man will make more opportunities than he finds." If we are wise, citizens, we shall open opportunities to our children beyond those we had, beyond those we now have—we shall endeavor, by advancing the educational privileges of our town, to leave it better than we found it. Each generation should be a stepping-stone to enable the next to mount higher.

The Emperor Titus felt that he had lost the day when on one occasion he failed, for twenty-four hours, to perform some kindness. We have lost our day—our opportunity—if we fail to provide such thoroughly equipped schools as shall enable our children to become wiser men and women than we are.
